

Ham 08 - Got this

Dr. Marc & Rosemary © 241126

First the disclaimer. The limited number of questions make practice exams an ineffective “teaching” tool and they are not a substitute for study. They only ask 35 questions out of about 420. They put 3 times the emphasis on wrong answers as the correct one. Unfortunately most slick vehicles have the same issues.

Over the years with hundreds of successful ham preparations, we have found for most people the fastest, simplest method.

Read the questions.
Learn ONLY the correct answer.
Pass exam.

That is the shortcut everyone seeks.

Focus only on the correct answers. Your mind does not need the negative from the distractors. This is not a cram course, but an emphasis on learning by only positive input.

One time through, you get some words but quickly forget. 2 times, you grasp a few concepts. 3 times, you understand about 50%. 5 times, you know about 90%. 7 times, you own 99% right now.

5 - 7

Different personalities use various learning styles. For those who like to take exams, ARRL and numerous other sites offer multiple practice exams. Because the actual assessments are well guarded, the practice exams will not be the real deal, except in form.

<https://www.arrl.org/exam-practice> > ARRL Exam Review for Ham Radio >
<https://arrlexamreview.appspot.com/>

We would suggest the on-line practice tests only as a final check-up measurement, after you have adequately prepared and are reasonably comfortable you have the fundamentals and are about ready to go.

Remember: Poetry in motion, with a nod to Dad.

Perfection is not required, suggested, or on the menu.
When you pass, who cares, if you missed a few?

I can do all this through Him who gives me strength. – Philippians 4:13 NIV

You've Got
This!

