

Ham 101 - How to ham

Dr. Marc & Rosemary Durham, Theway Labs, Bixby, OK © 241215

Questions about amateur radio have crossed your radar.

Ham 101 – How to be a Ham.

What if I told you that you can have your license in 4-weeks?

No baloney.

We have helped over 500.

We provide you with a unique study guide, with all the precise questions and exact answers. Guaranteed.

The process is just like the driver's license.

Read the question.

Read ONLY the correct answer.

Note the hint.

Repeat a few times and you are a ham.

Read twice in the first week, just to introduce the terms.

Keep it simple.

Many are more comfortable in a classroom setting.

We do that too.

We meet on a first Saturday morning for 2-hours from 9 - 11.

Come back in two weeks for another two hours.

Then in two more weeks, come back to take and pass the exam.

Check the schedule. www.evergreencg.org

Simply read the Q&A a few times in between.

That is it! Promise.

People are different, but typically five to seven times does it, which is about 20 hours.

Many questions are out there since most people know little about amateur radio. Let's look at some.

What does a ham do?

Some talk on the radio, some build things, some experiment.

You do what fits you and your need.

Get your license first, then we provide helps, guides, and instructions, plus camaraderie to assist you.

What is the age requirements?

None. In one session we had a 14-year lad sitting behind an 83-year-old great grandfather. That is cool.

Can girls do it? Absolutely. About 30% of our people are ladies.

Is any experience or technical abilities required?

Absolutely not!

We ask nothing of your background.

We ask only if you are interested in getting licensed.

If that answer is yes, we help you do it in 4-weeks or less.

Who does this?

Youngsters, families, stay-at-home-Moms, grandmothers, students.

Social-workers, accountants, salesmen, ministers, construction, truck-drivers, executives, outdoorsy.

Even computer scientists and engineers can learn to do it.

Come, see!

Life is good. Enjoy!

